How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headaches ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

HOW TO MAKE GREEK DRAPERY.

But These Directions Are Not for the Very Fat or the Very Lean.

It is a whim just now to be photographed in Greek costume. The idea is a good one, but how it is carried out! The average woman has a voluminous eccentricity of cheese cloth, made with much looping and several pieces of cord. This she puts on over corsets and stiff skirts. She looks like a "study of a woman in a pillow" when she is photographed. The proper Greek or Roman dress for a picture is made most simply, and a lesson in draperies is a good thing to learn. Use soft cheese cloth, or better still crepe or China silk. If the stuff is forty inches wide one breadth will do for the front and one for the back. If the material is narrow sew two breadths together for the front and two together for the back. Run the two pieces on the same drawing string, letting the ends of the string come together in the middle of the edge of the front. Here cut down a slit in the front so you can get into the gown.

Now, get into it. Adjust it so that it is properly low necked. It should be drawn well down into a pointed neck, front and back. Tie a piece of tape around yourself well under the armpits and bust line. The neck should be drawn down almost to this belt. Yes, the dress is open at the sides. We have not come to that yet. Have some one cut the front length, allowing for hem, so that it falls well to the floor. The back should be a little longer. Now the sides are sewed up in a seam that stops just under the arm. Thus, you see, an armhole is left.

Now for a sleeve that shall cover the under side of the arm at the shoulder. Cut a long tongue shaped piece of goods. Instead of squaring off the upper end, slant off that end into another point. The sleeve shape then is like two triangular pieces set base to base, the one triangle being very long and the other very much shorter. The short triangle doubles down under the arm, and is tucked into the slit of the armhole, and there sewed or pinned to the base of the two triangles, is drawn around the arm and buttoned to the top of the shoulder. The long triangle hangs. If you like, the edges of the sleeve left hanging can be buttoned together again further down the arm and the shape of the sleeve is easily modified to suit such arrangement.

Your Greek dress is finished now. Wear it over a closely fitting and rather heavy low neck woven under vest and a skirt made of India silk or very soft cassimere. The skirt hangs full and soft and well to the floor in front and almost dragging in the back. This skirt should be made on a deep yoke, or if not the skirt should be drawn down over it and securely pinned that no fullness at the waistbands may betray through the outer garment the presence of a skirt.

A chain of flat links or of medallions linked together is worn to hide the tape belt. The costume cannot be graceful or Grecian unless corsets or stays are discarded. The chain belt is drawn close and up to the point of the neck, there fastened, and thus serves to support the figure and outline its contour. Another belt may be worn which rests on the hips and droops low in front.

There should be no drapery except that afforded by the folds in the gown. These folds in the upper dress can be drawn close about the knees, showing the underskirt. In fact any classic effect can be obtained. A word to finish. Only a woman with fine arms and shoulders should attempt such dressing. The very fat or the very thin will look better in something else.—New York Sun.

"The Ideal Wife" Described.

Whether with a view to give precision to "the young man's fancy" at this pairing season, or merely to keep the gentler sex informed regarding the demand in the matrimonial market, our contemporary, The Young Man, has been inciting its readers to define "the ideal wife." The replies appear to agree that this perfect person must strive to exist solely for her husband's pleasure, profit and convenience. One tersely, if a trifle ungrammatically, says: "There should be a healthy compact between the piano and the wringing machine, so that the dignity of labor is not superseded by the dignity of art, but each contribute to the domestic felicity." Another, who may have been dipping into Schopenhauer's abominable chapter on "Women," put his views into the epigrammatic form: 'One whose life says my husband and I, and not I and my husband.'" Cardinal Wolsey's "Ego et meus Rex" would have been more appropriate still.

Culling further samples from the epistolary anthology we find that in the view of various correspondents the ideal wife "has skill enough to cook a good dinner without being wasteful, taste enough to dress well without being extravagant, tact enough to know when and how to speak", and that, moreover, she must be "one whose love prompts her to do what she can to make a home on earth a stepping stone to a home in heaven." One matrimonial monopolist even goes so far as to say that she must "prefer the company of her husband to that of any other man, and let people see it." We had always thought that "letting people see it" in such cases was considered bad manners.—London News.

A Queer Occupation.

It is possible that a new occupation has developed for that, in these days, ubiquitous personage, "the clever woman." A little more than a year ago a family suddenly put in straightened circumstances sat in council over the future. A widowed aunt who was once[illegible] it was [illegible] be put forth, but felt her incapacity. Her niece, a young girl, involuntarily solved the problem for her.

"Aunt Nell could go out as 'cheerer,'" she said playfully. "That is what she has always been in this house. Really, aunt," she continued, more earnestly, "perhaps that is your vocation. You know your poor sick people always say you cheer them up. Why couldn't you succeed as well among rich sick people? They would like your funny stories and your comfortable ways, I know."

This was the crude idea, and in a modified form it was acted upon. "Aunt Nell" did begin to go about among half sick and convalescent persons as a sort of temporary companion with marked success. She read to them, told stories, and looked at things cheerfully. She had original ideas, tact and discrimination, and succeeded wonderfully with ailing children and nervous persons. One patron suggested her to another until she found her time fairly well employed, when her varied career was suddenly cut short this spring by her acceptance of a permanent home as the companion and comfort of a young girl afflicted with a hopeless spinal malady. There is perhaps a suggestion in the recital, though, after all, the office is merely a special phase of the general one of companion.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

Victoria's Personal Servant.

Referring to the reports of the queen's departure, describing how, when her majesty embarked, she leaned on the arm of an Indian attendant, while the Duke of Connaught walked behind, a London correspondent writes: "Her majesty, who is faithful in her likes as she is pronounced in her aversions, has put the Indian in the place occupied by the famous John Brown, who for many years watched over his sovereign's safety with a zeal that was religious in its utter devotedness. The Indian successor to John Brown began to take rank about the time of the jubilee. He is a splendid fellow, stalwart but supple, gifted with the curtly dignity that comes natural alike to the well bred Hindoo or Mohammedan; he has also the gentleness of a woman and the reverence of a child.

"To him the sovereign is more than queen of Great Britain. She is also empress of nearly three hundred millions of his fellow subjects in India. Anyhow, his qualities have commended him to her majesty as a suitable personal attendant. Hence he now rides at the back of the queen's carriage; he leads her pony, he is ever by her side ready to fetch or carry, and, greatest honor of all, he is permitted to lend his arm to support his royal mistress' steps when she is weary or the way is difficult, or the injured knee troublesome."

Mrs. Astor Eulogized.

In a sketch of the late John Jacob Astor, the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, of Trinity church, said before the Genealogical and Biographical society of New York:

"New York society is a living entity, and has an existence of its own. In it, as in everything else, there is good and there is evil. In our society there is no crown, no hereditary aristocracy to set the fashion, but the leadership devolves upon those to whom the headship is tacitly conceded.

"Mrs. Astor was one of this number, and so assiduously did she attend to her duties that it ended in shortening her life. She knew that she must set a good example to society, that doors must be closed against dubious women and men with profligate tastes. She knew the extravagance, the low rivalry and the secret or open sympathy with an age which tended to corrupt the heart. It may be said for her that society was rendered the purer for her loftier ideals."

Dr. Dix said that he had good proof that Mr. and Mrs. Astor spent easily $100,000 a year in unostentatious charities. Mrs. Astor herself used frequently to visit the midnight mission which she had established in simple garb as Sister Augustine, her identity being unknown to the inmates.

A Girl Tackles a Big Snake.

Last year a monster snake was seen in the neighborhood of Donnell's mill, in this county, and its length was variously estimated by several parties who saw it at from eight to fifteen feet. An attempt was made to kill it, but it went into a thicket on the banks of the creek.

Nothing more was seen of this monster snake until Friday, when Miss Ida L. Robinson saw a cow, the property of Mr. Abner Schoolfield, down and struggling, and went to see what was the matter. Imagine her surprise to see, coiled around the neck of the cow, an immense snake some four inches in diameter and at least ten feet in length.

The cow was being choked to death, and the brave girl took hold of the snake with both hands, and, being a strong girl, she with great difficulty got it loose, or perhaps frightened it until it uncoiled itself and ran into the thicket. After awhile the cow, with aid from the lady, got upon its feet and was driven home. The snake was of a brown color, and showed no signs of striking or biting, as is common to all our native snakes, hence it is believed to be an anaconda, which has made its escape from some menagerie.—Greensboro Record.

A Popular Librarian.

The dismissal of Mrs. Mary Morancy as state librarian of Mississippi, after fourteen years of faithful and efficient service, has provoked widespread discussion in the south, and a petition is in circulation asking that she be restored to office. Mrs. Morancy was the first woman to hold a state office in Mississippi. When she took charge of the library it was badly catalogued, incomplete and lumbered with worthless matter. With a constantly diminishing appropriation for the purchase of books Mrs. Morancy made the Mississippi library the second in value of its kind in the Union, the Massachusetts library only outranking it.

As a librarian she was an expert. She knew the contents of every book in her care, and most of this intimate knowledge came from her constant and care-moval is regretted not only by her friends, but also by the judges, legislators, state officials and lawyers, many of whom depended on her to hunt up citations and references needed in their work.—New York World.

A Bit of Calcutta Gossip.

A charming bit of gossip has been going the rounds about some of the amenities of the "upper ten" in Calcutta. The story runs that a lady called at a house, sent up her card, was admitted, paid the usual visit, and enjoyed the usual amount of small talk with the lady of the house. Returning home, she informed her husband where she had been, when that distinguished member of society at once wrote off to the "Occupant of the house, No. — — street," saying that his wife had called by mistake, and requesting the return of the card she left on visiting the lady of said house. The husband of the lady visited, however, was equal to the occasion, for he replied that on returning home and finding the card, he had looked at his wife's visiting list, and not finding the name of the visitor, he had torn up the card, and was, therefore, unable to return it.—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Youthful Western Diva.

A bright looking little girl, with the voice of a nightingale, is the discovery of Rev. W. S. Vail, of the First Universalist church. She is little May Grithffis, a ten-year-old child, whose wonderful vocal powers are so unusual as not only to attract attention, but to give promise of great future excellence. Recently she sang at the church services at the Grand Opera House, and her rendition of "The Ninety and Nine" was a wonderful piece of vocalization, and thrilled her auditors like music from another world. High C is a very clear and pure mark for her, and her expression and shading gave evidence of the possession of great talent. The young diva is in the hands of Professor Lienau for training and will make her mark in the future.—St. Paul Globe.

It Saves the Gown.

Paris dressmakers add a deep band of waterproof goods to the underside of street dresses that sweep the ground. This band can then be sponged each time it has dragged the mud and debris after it. This cleaning process must be a most distasteful task for either mistress or maid, but it is undertaken, if only half accomplished, as nothing but fire or fumigation could remove the odor. The number of women who adopt this trailing street gown is rather surprising in view of the common sense, practical and cultured ideas of the present day. Still this ultra fashionable class who rush into every extreme is greatly in the minority.—New York Post.

The Winner in an Open Contest.

Miss Jessie Sudlow, a seventeen-year-old South Carolina girl, has won the prize offered by The Times, of Manchester, England, for the best composition on "The Best Book, and Why I Like It." The competition was open to the world, and there were competitors from France, Germany, Canada, South America, Mexico and the United States. Miss Sudlow is a pupil in the public schools of Columbia, S. C. Her subject was "Ivanhoe." Miss Ethel Sudlow, a younger sister of the prize winner, is highly commended for a paper contributed to the junior division of the same competition.—Woman's Journal.

Another Cold in Sight.

There is a very good story told concerning a certain social leader in Boston. At an evening musicale last winter she appeared in a très decollete gown with her hands thrust into a muff of white fur. Sweeping up to her hostess, she apologized for bringing her muff into the drawing room. "But," said she, "I have such a severe cold I really did not dare to come without," and the bystanders, looking at her bare neck and shoulders, smiled involuntarily.—Boston Gazette.

Mrs. Ignatius Grossmann (Edwina Booth) is the only woman permitted to enter the Players' club in New York. When her father is in town and staying at the club, she goes there frequently, passing through to the elevator and up to his room, almost without being seen. She is a very sedate little woman, and passionately fond of her two children.

Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton numbers among her intimate friends in England the poetess, Mrs. Arthur Tomson, better known to the reading public by her signature, Graham R. Tomson. Mrs. Moulton will pass the summer abroad, and will make London her first tarrying place. In that city she has a large circle of literary and artistic friends.

German women have always been remarkable for their good sound sense. A short time ago the ladies of Marienberg, East Prussia, published a card in the principal newspapers of that city, requesting the gentlemen not to remove their hats during cold weather in greeting them, but to acknowledge their bow with a military salute.

Miss Alice Parker, attorney at law, of Massachusetts, is endeavoring to amend the existing state laws of administration of estates. Her purpose is to equalize the right of the wife in sharing property to that of the husband, and to set aside to the widow with minor children the entire estate of the husband if it does not exceed $1,000.

A late London fancy for table decoration is the use of a small Turkey carpet as a cover. It is gratefully recorded that the fancy does not seem a popular one there, and it is devoutly hoped that it will never pass the New York quarantine station should it attempt immigration.

The rage for gold has brought the gold gauze veil to the fore. Its popularity should be limited to women who are young, whose complexions are above reproach. Chantilly lace is noted with tiny gold balls scattered here and there

THE suspension of the Alta has caused more or less comment, both favorable and unfavorable, among our exchanges. The claim set up in its valedictory that the paper died because it was too respectable to live is an insult to the other journals of the metropolis. The fact of the matter is the defunct sheet had outlived its usefulness years ago. Of late years it has been run in the interest of corporations and had little influence and a small circulation. The San Jose Mercury relates the following episode connected with the old Granny of newspapers; "When the Alta was in its glory it made a mossback fight against the proposition to construct the Central Pacific Railroad, asserting that the road could never be carried over the steep Sierras, and it indicated a point on the route which the road would never reach. In due season, however, the road reached the place and a switch and depot were set up there and the station called Alta. In a short time now this sarcastically-named station will be all that will transmit the memory of the one-time great journal to posterity."

CHARLES LEE was sent from the Boys and Girls' Aid Society to a ranch near San Luis Obispo, owned by the Andrews brothers. Tuesday when the brothers came in to dinner from the field, the boy began shooting at them with a Winchester, but without effect. The boy then took a shot-gun and while chasing one of the brothers fell, the gun was discharged and the top of the would-be murderer's head was blown off.

A GEORGIA editor has the faculty of looking on the bright side of things down to a fine point. He says: "We have been down with the grip three days, but we are feeling quite cheerful, as we own a lot in the cemetery and the coffin factory owes us $10 for an advertisment." In another column of his paper he acknowledges the receipt of "a cheerful little book entitled, 'Are You Ready to Die?"

A JURY at Spokane, after being out twenty-four hours, could not agree when the judge ordered them back into the jury-room to remain until they reached a verdict. He also instructed the bailiff not to give them anything to eat until they had found a verdict of guilty or not guilty, in a highway robbery case. In ten minutes thereafter the jury returned a verdict finding the prisoner guilty as charged.

THE King of Dahomey is the possessor of a brass helmet with a flowing green plume which he considers of more consequence to his dignity than troops of guards or a park of artillery. When he mounts it on his massive brow and dons his court uniform—a paper collar and a pair of braces—his subjects look admiringly at him through smoked glasses.

A LITTLE camphor placed in every window sill will keep out flies except in the kitchen where the temptation is stronger, and the remedy of necessity more stringent. But a little camphor sprinkled on the cook stove now and again will drive out the pests and keep them out, while it will also neutralize the unpleasant smell of cooking.

They Guyed Him.

The most utterly miserable man in the state of Minnesota is McHale, the anti-tights champion. Up to the time the senate passed his bill he had been left comparatively free from criticism. He was rudely awakened the next morning to find that "the world had turned against him" in one night.

Then came the guying. He would start for a drive, and find that some solicitous friend had incased the legs of the animal in old trousers. Did he go into a hotel restaurant or dining room, some wag would see to it that the bill of fare would read "frog's limbs" instead of frog's legs. He would order spring chicken, and the leg of the fowl would be wrapped in paper. Even the girls would giggle when they met him, and with expressive glances look down at their dress to see it was not disarranged. Then the old man's mail began to increase, until it seemed that everybody in the United States had determined to take a crack at him.

The letters—many of them were abusive—made the old man wild. The writers called him by every name known, and some of them were addressed, "Old-Man-Ashamed-of-His-Shape McHale," "Nude-in-Art McHale," etc.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Poisoned by Centipede Venom.

A family of six persons by the name of Boulding, moving by wagon from Tennessee to Texas, camped on the line of Baxter and Boone counties, in Arkansas, one night. They had coffee at supper, which was prepared in a tin vessel without a cover. Next morning Mrs. Boulding warmed over the coffee that had been left, of which she and two of the children drank freely.

Scarcely had the breakfast been finished when the entire party—father, mother and four children—were seized with the most excruciating pains. Their screams brought a neighbor to the rescue, who summoned a physician. When the doctor arrived the mother and two of the children were dead, and the other members of the family were only saved by the skill of the physician, who administered antidotes for poisoning.

Examination of the coffee revealed the fact that a mountain centipede had crawled into the coffee pot during the night, and had been boiled for breakfast.—Cor. Memphis Appeal-Avalanche.

Across the Deep, to the Far West,

On steamboats, cars and stage coaches, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is carried as the most important item in the materia medica of the traveling public. It deprives vitiated, brackish water of its hurtful properties and execrable flavor, counteracts the pernicious effects upon the stomach of bad or indigestible food, remedies cramps, heartburn and wind upon the stomach. It is a fine defense against malarial disorders, nullifies the effects of excessive heat, cold and damp, relieves sick headache, and is an incomparable cure for costiveness and biliousness. The fatigue of travel often tells most disastrously upon invalids and convalescents, occasionally to such an extent as to jeopardise life. Persons in feeble health, apprehensive of bad effects from travel, will, if provided with the Bitters, be far less likely to have their fears realized.

The Hotel Kirkwood at Los Guilicos will celebrate its summer opening next Saturday evening with a grand concert, ball and supper. This hotel under the new management bids fair to become one of the most popular resorts of Sonoma Valley. We learn that quite a number of people from Santa Rosa, Sonoma and Glen Ellen will be present at the opening and we bespeak for them a good time.

Following visitors to Sonoma Valley registered at the Mervyn Hotel the past week: J. R. Baird, M. Baird, D. J. Baird, John M. Floyd, Mrs. Chambers, Misses Flora and Eliza Chambers, Mrs. A. M. Darmier, Mrs. R. Dalziel, Miss Margaret Dalziel, A. Dalziel, Mrs. Walters, Mr. Allen, Mrs. Rollins, E. P. Rogers, O. C. Goodspeed, J. M. Goodspeed, all of San Francisco; Geo. H. Huddy, J. C. White, Honolulu.

The introduction of Ramie culture in Sonoma Valley still continues to attract marked attention in many of the manufacturing centers of our own country and Europe. An offer has already been made by the English firm of Landauer & Co., London, of 5 cents per pound for all merchantable fiber produced in this valley this season. This with the State's bonus of one cent per pound brings the market price up to six cents. If Ramie takes kindly to our soil and climate wine grapes will have to take a back seat for the new product.

This valley was visited by another heavy rainstorm last Wednesday evening which continued for the most part throughout the night. The precipitation was quite heavy at times. The damage to the hay crop and cherries, which was very slight from the showers which fell in May, will be considerable from Wednesday night's downpour. Little or no damage has been suffered by other crops. Tokay grapes have been greatly retarded by the remarkably cool and damp weather which has prevailed since the opening of Spring and it is feared that they will not mature before the Fall rains set in, in which case the crop would prove a total failure.

Take your home paper.

AN IMPORTANT VISIT.

Samuel L. Jones. the Mining King, Inspects the Pless Dredger and the Sonoma Meadow Lands.

Samuel L. Jones, brother of Senator John P. Jones, came up from the Bay last Sunday to visit Mr. W. B. Pless and inspect the meadow lands being reclaimed by that gentleman in that part of our valley bordering Sonoma creek a few miles south of town.

Mr. Jones was highly pleased with the progress that has already been made and was more than ever convinced of the success of the enterprise that he and his brother has entered into with two or three other monied men.

That the reclamation of the Sonoma meadow lands is the forerunner of one of the greatest farming enterprises ever inaugurated in this valley is now a foregone conclusion.

The land, once reclaimed, is easy to cultivate and will grow immense crops of almost everything that grows and that, too, without irrigation. Already nearly 2,000 acres have been reclaimed the past year and will be put under cultivation.

Samuel L. Jones is known in mining circles as the King of mining men, and if he takes half the interest in land matters in this valley as he has shown in his mining enterprises the reclamation project now being prosecuted by him and his associates is bound to develop into one of the grandest and most successful farming undertakings ever inaugurated in Northern California.

FIRE NEAR TOWN.

Narrow Escape of the Appleton Residence and Barn.

At 11 o'clock yesterday morning a grass fire broke out on the Appleton place one mile northwest of town and for a time it was thought that the dwelling and barn would go up in flames. C. W. Engelbert, chief of the Sonoma Fire Department, fortunately happened to be passing by at the time the alarm was given and with a number of neighbors and the section men of the Donahue railroad succeeded in arresting the flames at the very threshold of the residence. Mr. Engelbert sustained the well earned reputation of the Sonoma fire boys as fire fighters and rendered valuable aid. He had his moustache and eye-brows signed and when he made his appearance in town after the fire had been extinguished looked like a coal-heaver on a bay steamer.

A Resident of Sonoma in Paris.

Mr. E K Stevenot of this place, who has been sojourning in Paris the past month, will return home early in July. During his stay in the French capital Mr. Stevenot has taken a great deal of interest in the various matters concerning this valley. He has looked carefully into the wine and olive industry of France and made a searching inquiry into the cultivation of Ramie and its manufacture into commercial fabrics. He called upon and had a personal interview with the inventor of the defibrizing machine, which it is claimed will make possible the profitable cultivation of Ramie in this State. After a thorough research Mr. Stevenot writes that he is of the opinion that Ramie can be cultivated with profit in this valley if properly managed. During his stay in Paris that gentleman has visited several large stores that deal extensively in goods manufactured from Ramie, and found a great demand for the product.

Wine and Women.

The San Francisco papers of Tuesday contained an account of the downfall and rascally proceedings of A. A. Hoyt. This is the same Hoyt who was a professor in the Christian College here, several years ago. He was too fond of the cup that inebriates, and, with the usual concomitant of fast women his ruin was by no means a slow process. For some time past he has been engineering the affairs of a land company in San Francisco, and, it appears, has only been saved from disgrace on several previous occasions by the generosity of his father who lives in Monterey. When he left San Francisco for parts unknown, Monday, he carried with him $300 which had been swindled out of a friend. It seems there was nothing of the heroic in his rascality; a man who robs a friend is worse than a sneak thief. Santa Rosa Democrat.

ARTESIAN WATER.

Another Flowing Well Developed in Sonoma.

Does a Subterranean River Flow Beneath the Town?

Within the past two years it has been demonstrated without a doubt that Sonoma is the center of one of the greatest artesian belts in California, if not the world. The town is practically built over a large subterranean river, located less than 150 feet from the surface. The extent and depth of the waters of this apparently underground stream can only be conjectured. Already it has been tapped with six-inch pipes in some half-dozen places in the northern part of town, and in every instance where a depth of from 120 to 200 feet has been attained artesian water has gushed to the surface in vast quantities.

About two years ago Dr. L. B. Lawrence, a gentleman of no little scientific attainments, after a thorough research into the matter of artesian water supply, became convinced that a subterranean river flowed beneath the town site at a slight depth and that flowing artesian wells in abundance could be developed in Sonoma at very slight cost. Selecting a spot on Terrace Hill, his private residence grounds, he caused a research to be made into the bowels of the earth, with the result that at a depth of less than two hundred feet a flow of over half a million gallons of pure sparkling water was obtained per every 24 hours.

Shortly after the above well had been developed S. Schocken, an enterprising merchant of this place, sunk a well on his property only a few hundred yards from the Lawrence well, and at a depth of 125 feet a flow exceeding that of the Lawrence well was struck. The close proximity of these wells did not diminish the flow of either in the least, proving without a doubt that Sonoma's artesian water supply was illimitable.

Following these developments came in their order the Aguillon and Poppe wells, whose flowing capacity almost equaled the others, and still no diminishment was perceptible in the quantity or force of the water flowing from the wells previously developed.

The latest development in Sonoma's artesian water supply was that made by Henry Weyl one day last week, when at a depth of 120 feet his artesian well-borers struck a flowing well that is the equal of any one of the others.

The combined flowing capacity of these several wells, which by the way, are located almost on a line within a running distance of 2000 feet, amounts to between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 gallons every twenty-four hours. The average depth of these wells is about 150 feet, and the water is forced up through six-inch pipes to a height of from five to twenty feet.

So far little has been done to turn Sonoma's artesian water supply to account, owing to lack of capital and enterprise, and the old town slumbers quietly along while golden streams of sparkling water gushes up from a half-dozen wells and blending together flows aimlessly out of the town toward the sea.

That this water can be profitably utilized for manufacturing, as well as for irrigating purposes, does not admit of a doubt when Sonoma's accessibility to the marts of the Pacific coast is taken into account. A fortune awaits the man who first secures control of and utilizes the flowing artesian water of Sonoma.

The Union Hall Social.

The initial party of a series of socials to be given by Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Moore at Union Hall, took place last Saturday evening. It was a very pleasant and successful affair, being attended by a large number of our best people. Dancing was the feature of the evening and was kept up until midnight. A violin and piano furnished excellent music. The hall was prettily decorated with pink and white bunting, evergreens and flowers and stretched across the front of the large stage was the word "Welcome" wrought in evergreens. Delicious ice cream, coffee, sandwiches and cake were served without stint during the evening and a highly enjoyable time was had by all present. Next Saturday evening the second of these socials will be given. Every party-goer should be present as a pleasant time is assured.

Golden Wedding.

It is not often we are called upon to record a golden wedding for it is seldom that both man and wife live to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. For the first time in several years a golden wedding was celebrated by Sonoma people. Last week, at the home of their son in Berkeley, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hoag of this place celebrated that event. The venerable couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents. All were of gold if we except a fine horse and cow.

Last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the Sunday school children of the M. E. Church celebrated Childrens' Day in an appropriate manner. The exercises opened with singing by the choir, then Rev. Mr. Trudgen followed with a prayer, after which the pretty dialogue, "Pearl Gatherers," was given, in which many of the Sunday school children took part. Miss Effie McCaskey took the part of the Queen and Miss Ella McIntyre acted as Interpreter. There were a number of recitations and songs which were well received and delighted the congregation. The church was tastefully decorated and every pew filled with interested listeners. Many members of other denominations attended. Next Sunday morning the Congregational Sunday School will celebrate Childrens' Day at their large church on Broadway.

Accidents and Incidents---Dr. O'Donnell's Bear.

School will close in this place on Friday of next week.

A. Harrison, the genial proprietor of the Mervyn Hotel, received a car-load of furniture last Tuesday.

Capt. and Mrs. Stofen of Santa Rosa were down last Sunday greeting their many friends in this place.

The Glen Ellen Grange has leased the Native Sons hall for a term of months and the society is now one of the permanent institutions of the town.

Wm. Sobbe, the efficient station agent of the S. F. & N. P. Railway, is kept very busy. The amount of freight arriving in Glen Ellen daily is simply enormous.

Mrs. M. E. Pleasant, the owner of the Nunn ranch near this place, has also purchased the Drummond farm. The lady is also negotiating for the purchase of several small farms in this vicinity.

Mrs. K. F. Warfield, who has been residing in San Francisco for some time past, was taken suddenly and seriously ill in that city one day last week. She is now rapidly improving and on a fair way to recovery.

At a meeting of the Native Sons held last Saturday evening the following officers were elected: Robt. P. Hill, President; C. C. Weise, First Vice-President; F. M. Luttrell, Treasurer; Chas. J. Poppe, Secretary; C. H. Bruning, Marshal.

Amy, the little daughter of Chas. J. Poppe, met with quite a serious mishap last Sunday evening. While at play she accidentally fell, cutting quite a gash in her neck from which the blood flowed freely. At this writing she is greatly improved and the wound is not as serious as at first supposed.

The picnic of the Candy-Makers of San Francisco at this place, last Sunday, numbered about 800. If the members had eaten more of their own production with a little of Adam's ale to wash it down, instead of indulging too freely in intoxicating beverages the numerous knock-downs which disgraced the affair would not have taken place.

Dr. C. C. O'Donnell of San Francisco, on his last visit to his Glen Ellen farm, brought with him several real live bears. One of the many vicious dogs which roam in this vicinity took it into his head to tackle Mr. Bruin. After the contest it is said that not enough dog remained to make a decent funeral. This episode convinces us more than ever that a bear hates a dog worse than an Indian does soap.

WIDE AWAKE.

Glen Ellen, June 11, 1891.

The Death Spring of Mendocino.

At a point about thirty feet from the highway from Ukiah to Hopland, there is a spring seemingly of clear pure water, but really a death trap to man and beast. An inhalation of noxious gas which comes from it is enough to kill a strong man. The skeletons of birds and small animals are thickly strewn around the spring, while sometimes a steer will come all unconscious to drink and lie down on its brink to die. People in the vicinity know of its danger, but it is a menace to strangers, as no sign of warning is placed at the spot. Human life has been sacrificed in more than one instance, and yet the criminal neglect of posting a warning continues. The only noticeable pecularity about the spring is the loud hissing noise emitted by the water as it gushes forth from the gravelly soil.—Ex.

Happy Hoosiers.

Wm. Timmons, Postmaster of Idaville, Ind., writes "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that bad feeling arising from Liver and Kidney trouble." John Leslie, a farmer and stockman, of the same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best Kidney and Liver medicine: made me feel like a new man." J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant same town, say: "Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies; he found new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life. Only 50c. a bottle at Ed. Wegner's Drug Store.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, JUNE 13, 1891.

LOVELY FEMININE EDITORS.

Beauty and Talent Charmingly Combined in Convention in Atlanta.

From all parts of Georgia there arrived in Atlanta Monday ladies who have done much to mold the opinions and shape the actions of this state in their journalistic work. Some are charming, cultured matrons, many are fresh from the halls of learning, young and enthusiastic. And there is a certain tone to the papers they represent that reflects honor upon them. The president, who originated this club, is Mrs. Byington. She is of medium height, and has a complexion whose fairness is unrivaled. She has many charms of person and manner that I know my pen could never depict, so I will not make an attempt; but to my mind her chief attractions after her clear musical voice and charming conversation are the merry twinkle in her soft brown eyes and the smile lurking round the corners of her mouth. She has made a most energetic and efficient president, and is well known as the editor of the Columbus Leader.

Miss Minnie Quinn is a lovely petite brunette. Her sparkling black eyes, black silken hair, rosy lips and rich complexion, combined with her subdued, winning manner render, Miss Quinn as attractive as her dainty verse.

Miss Dortch is making for herself a name on the Carnesville Tribune. She is but recently from college, and has the delightful air of the pensive student combined with the vigor and energy of a journalist. The blush of the peach is in her cheeks and the violet's lovely hue in her eyes. She is a graceful writer.

Miss McCutchen is at the helm of the Franklin News. She can write editorials and, if necessary, set them up in type. In conversation she is bright and sparkling, and increased expression is given by the humorous eyes.

Mrs. Ohl is well known as "Maude Andrews," of The Constitution. She is a beautiful woman, and in conversation is wondrously magnetic and has a most magnanimous nature.

Mrs. Harry Brown represents the oft quoted Alliance Farmer. She can write a stirring article and win you by its logic and grace, and her beautiful language in conversation has the same effect.

The Atlanta Journal's representative is Miss Corienne Stokes. She is as sparkling as her articles, and is one of the coming Georgia journalists.

Mrs. Myrick represents the cultured city of Americus and The Times-Recorder. She is a charming writer, a charming talker and a charming listener. Her cunning smile brightens the whole club.

Mrs. Williams is a gentle, brown eyed lady, with a manner dignified and graceful. She is winning new laurels in her success on Society. Atlanta's new paper.

Mrs. Wyley, her co-worker on this popular paper, is too well known to justify description. Her sweet poems have thrilled many hearts, and her journalistic work has been varied and thorough.

Miss Bealer combines literary work with teaching, and in both excels. She is a popular member of the club.

When such a group of charming ladies, so cultured and lovely, met at the Kimball a delightful social union was the natural outcome.—Atlanta Cor. Athens (Ga.) Ledger.

Mrs. Birt's Robins' Treat.

There is no sweeter charity in all England than the Robins' treat which a Mrs. Louisa Birt, of Liverpool, provides semi-annually for 5,000 of the poorest little children she can find. A month in advance of the treat agents are sent into all the dark courts, alleyways and back streets of Liverpool with invitations for the Robins. Absolutely no questions are asked, the messenger seeing with half an eye whether the dwellers deserve cards or not. At the last treat, served New Year's eve, the finance committee placed St. George's hall at the disposal of Mrs. Birt and her 5,000 Robins. The treat was all that could have been desired, and not one birdling was permitted to escape until he was too jolly full to eat another crumb.—London Letter.

Hats and Hair.

Did any one ever notice how hats and coiffures increase and decrease in inverse ratio? When the Gainsborough flourished every girl twisted her little wisp of hair into a tight, diminutive Psyche knot. With the present saucer style the coiffure is an important feature, well covering the back of the head, for a woman must wear something on her head. The arrangement consists of softly coiled locks or lightly rolled puffs and twists from which soft curls escape, and are caught again and held by a fillet of gold or shell. Gold nets, not tinsel, but the genuine precious metal, adorn some dusky coiffures for dressy wear. They are finished with a fringe of tiny pendants, and fastened in place with jeweled pins.—Exchange.

Hot Water, Not Rouge.

"Do I use rouge? Oh, dear, no, my dear boy. Don't you know it is considered very vulgar now? Only actress women, shop girls and such paint their faces. It's unnice, you know."

"And what do you use?" I asked, for she looked very charming at the little reception the other evening, and her cheeks had a blush that I well knew was not put there by nature.

"Hot water, that's all. Before going out just bathe the cheeks in water as scalding hot as you can stand. The color will stay for three or four hours. It's ever so much nicer than rouge, and more natural."—New York Herald.

Berkshire Girl's Muscle.

Some of the young men who tried in vain to lift from the sidewalk the 180 pound dumbbell, the heaviest of the collection on exhibition for the Housatonic Hose company entertainment Wednesday, were surprised to see Miss Sadie Rogers, a fifteen-year-old girl who lost her right arm in the woolen mill, raise it several inches with her right hand. She is a young lady of fine physique, but the strength manifested by this feat is certainly remarkable.—Berkshire Courier.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma and all throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. NOYES, 820 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

"German Syrup"

J. C. Davis, Rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, Eufaula, Ala.: "My son has been badly afflicted with a fearful and threatening cough for several months, and after trying several prescriptions from physicians which failed to relieve him, he has been perfectly restored by the use of two bottles of Boschee's German Syrup. I can recommend it without hesitation." Chronic severe, deep-seated coughs like this are as severe tests as a remedy can be subjected to. It is for these long-standing cases that Boschee's German Syrup is made a specialty. Many others afflicted as this lad was, will do well to make a note of this.

An Episcopal Rector.

J. F. Arnold, Montevideo, Minn., writes: I always use German Syrup for a Cold on the Lungs. I have never found an equal to it—far less a superior.

THE COWBOY KNOWS!

Trying to hold a drove of cattle together in a drenching rain means an amount of exposure which few can withstand without serious results. If sickness does not follow, it will be found that such hardship usually brings on rheumatism and similar complaints. At such times a "Fish Brand Slicker" is worth its weight in gold, and is invaluable to any one exposed to stormy weather. For all saddle uses, you want a Pommel Slicker, which keeps the entire saddle, pommel, and cantle dry, and completely envelopes the rider from head to foot. He can't get wet, whatever the weather. And, besides keeping him dry, it keeps him warm. Every range rider has one. Why shouldn't you? Beware of worthless imitations; every garment stamped with "Fish Brand" Trade Mark. Don't accept any inferior coat when you can have the "Fish Brand Slicker" delivered without extra cost. Particulars and illustrated catalogue free.
